PAINTING... AN OPEN DOOR TO COMMUNICATION

Many children with autism have an extraordinary ability TO THINK VISUALLY IN PICTURES. They can turn this ability into expressing ideas and feelings through paintings or other artistic media. Mixing the colors, adding texture and tone comes naturally to them.

PAINTING IS A FORM OF THERAPY that requires little or no verbal interaction, and can open doors to communication, emotional growth, and sensory integration in a fun setting.

Kids get enjoyment, stress relief, and a boost to their self confidence and self awareness.

From tackling art objects or simply exploring art materials, they can channel some of their behaviors into an expressive creative outlet, improving their ability to manage sensory issues (for example problems with smell, stickiness...) and improving their fine motor skills.

Working together on group projects (such as 2x2meter paintings) teaches them cooperation, team work, and a sense of acceptance.

Many children with autism have difficulties communicating or expressing themselves through words.

ART IS AN AVENUE FOR SELF EXPRESSION.

We never give up! If we don't make the effort to find out what their skills are, we will never know what they are capable of... AND THEY SO OFTEN AMAZE US!
